MAN ON THE STREET WASN'T

Everybody was minding their own business (oh, with some exceptions, most likely) when this cold front from the north, a real Texas Norther, fooled everybody and arrived on schedule.

It had peculiar effects on the area. Like, it had a lot of home fans sitting with the visitors on the north side of Yoe Field Thursday night looking south to an almost empty Yoe fan side.

The rest were in the pressbox. Transmissions creaked and batteries found a little less than enough juice to turn some engines. Particularly was this true where the wind chill factor was probably about 10 above while the thermometer was above freezing.

Stray cats crawled into car engines and risked being fodder for tennis rackets. Dogs sprinted past trees contrary to the very nature of caninedom.

People, oh people put on topcoats and mufflers and caps and gloves for one of the several times a year when Central Texas Milam has any real reason to be blue.

A last, daring cricket ran for light and found the bright, white wall as cold as the ground he came from, and fell, dead stiff as well as brittle.

And people are more serious in trying to read the centigrade or celcius: If it's 40 degrees fahrenheit, it's 8 degrees celcius, which makes it seem even colder than it is.

The weatherman is no help on such nights, even when he promises "fair and warmer" by the weekend, if indeed that was the prediction.

By 7 p.m. the man, or woman, on the street wasn't.

Rail Line Closing Protested

The Texas attorney general is taking Rosebud's side to keep the Southern Pacific Railroad from abandoning 14 miles of track between Rosebud and Cameron, according to a story in the Rosebud News Friday.

The rail company filed its intention to abandon the track with the Interstate Commerce Commission and since that time there has been a large volume of mail against the proposition to the plan which would leave Rosebud with no rail service between the two towns.

In a "Statement of Intent to Intervene" Atty. Gen. John Hill stated that the State of Texas will take an active part in the proceeding to abandon the rail line.

The statement said, in part: "The action taken by the Commission will directly affect the commerce, industry, labor, citizenry and environment of the State of Texas. The allowance of the proposed abandonment would deprive a major agricultural area of Texas of an efficient and reasonable economical means of transporting its commodities to market."

There was also a statement that the state may, upon completion of its rail plan, have an interest in submitting an offer of financial assistance to the applicant railroad company for the continued operation of the line in the public interest.

County Museum Due Guard Bars For Windows

Guard bars for the downstairs windows of the county museum are being constructed by the Yoe ag students in their welding class, museum chairman Mary Belle Batte told committee members last week.

As soon as the windows are protected, a committee will be in the museum on designated days to accept loans or donations of exhibits for the county museum.

Miss Batte said a number of people have expressed interest in loaning or giving exhibits for the museum, housed in the old Milam County Jail.

Plans are to have an opening between Thanksgiving and Christmas, with three of four rooms of exhibits ready for visitors.

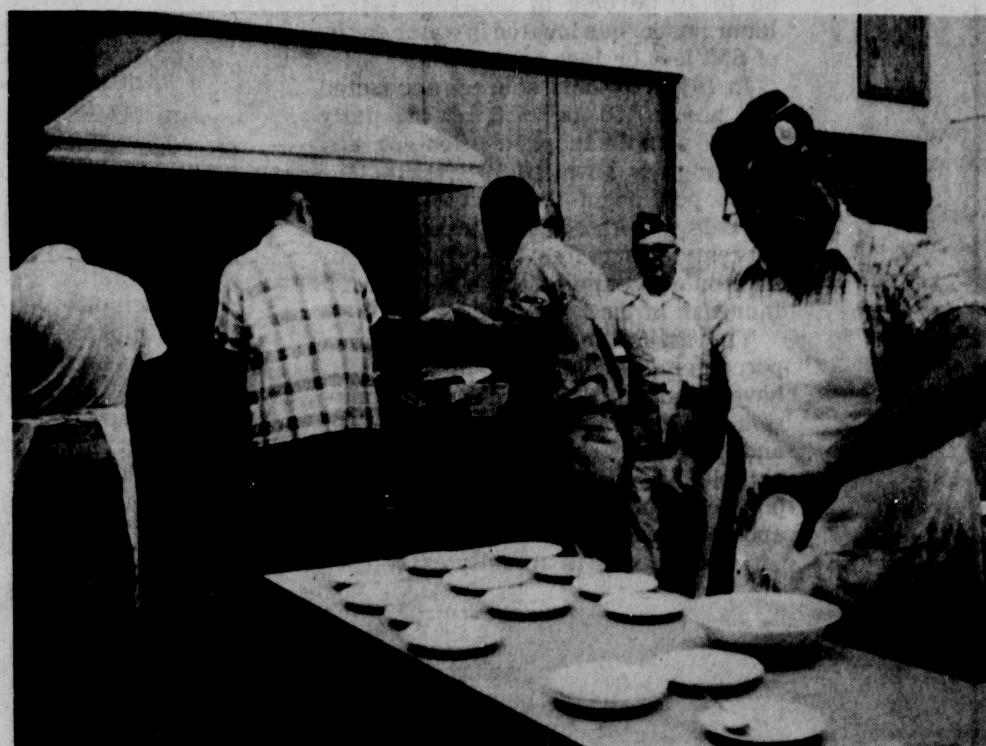

Members of the committee voted to have the same officers serve for another year, instead of changing officers in January.

The committee also heard a report on landscaping plans from Mrs. Leo Fuchs, chairman of the museum grounds committee.

Stolte Still Wins In Vote Recount

A vote recount for Precinct 4 (Thorndale area) commissioner was completed Wednesday and showed a difference from the original figures submitted by election judges.

Incumbent commissioner Curtis Hines received 521 votes and challenger and write-in candidate Walter Stolte received 536. Original count was 525 for Stolte and 522 for Hines.

Postal Service Asks Early Holiday Mailing

The U. S. Postal Service has advanced by one week its suggested mailing deadlines of Christmas mail because of higher mail volume resulting from the strike against United Parcel Service.

The suggested deadlines were moved up to Dec. 3 for domestic parcels and Dec. 10 for letters and Christmas cards.

Parcel volume has more than doubled in the 15 eastern and southern states affected by the eight-week-old strike against United Parcel, which is the Postal Service's main competitor.

The Christmas mailing season annually is the biggest test of the mail system. If the United Parcel strike continues past Thanksgiving, the traditional start of the Christmas mailing season, it will give the Postal Service an unprecedented burden.

The Postal Service said that because of the strike-inflated volume in the 15 states and a residual effect on other parts of the country, it "is compelled to ask the public to mail even earlier than normal."

The Postal Service, which has increased overtime and hired extra help since the strike began Sept. 15, said it has had little trouble handling the increased mail volume.

It expressed confidence it "will continue to be able to cope with the increase, with the cooperation of the public and major mailers."

But the statement indicated that the huge parcel volume will affect first-class mail as well. "While priority will be given to letter mail, many postal facilities normally dedicated to letter mail may have to be used to prevent an unmanageable backlog of parcels."

Rep. Kubiak 'Happy' About Governor's Plan

Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale said today that legislation on school finance recommended by Gov. Dolph Briscoe "appears to be headed in the proper direction."

"I am extremely happy to see that Gov. Briscoe and his education advisors have finally assessed the thinking of Texas property owners and taxpayers for what it is and has been under the present school finance system," Kubiak said.

"I don't believe there's any question that the people are sick and tired of footing an ever-increasing, disproportionate share of the costs of public education with their local school property taxes," he added.

The Rockdale representative made the comments following the release of a study by the governor's office of education on the taxable wealth of Texas school districts. Briscoe also revealed his proposal for new school finance legislation.

"I've got to say that on the face of it, the Governor has moved in the right direction, but obviously it's too early with this massive amount of information to totally endorse or condemn the study or the legislation," he added. "It's going to take some study to see just how it affects every school district and its taxpayers."

Kubiak said he wished that the Governor had gone farther in raising the state's share of public education's costs.

When A Lot Is NOT A Lot!

Yoe High School is reviewing the possibilities of putting on an established musical in a tight CISD budget year. Cameron is coming of age in a number of contemporary ways: a Milam Museum, an outstanding band, a form of convention or exposition center, obviously a lot of things.

It seems that YHS music people are looking to doing a great musical ("Oklahoma") which would involve vocal, instrumental, acting, and dance talent throughout the YHS talent spectrum. And the budget item, advance payment for royalties, scripts, music, et al, exceeds what is available in activity funds.

Since YHS and Cameron have no auditorium, but are in a town where a Milam Exposition Hall is under construction, it is worthwhile to attempt productions like this, even on the stage of the newly remodeled Yoe Gymnasium.

Advance costs are perhaps $1,000. That is a lot of money, but by the same token, it is not a lot of money. We mean, of course, in terms of what it would do for those young singers, instrumentalists, dancers, and actors, not to mention perhaps a couple of thousand of people who would enjoy a two-night stand of a YHS production of "Oklahoma."

Let's take another look at it.

New Sense Of Direction...

Some destruction is underway, anticipating new projects in Cameron.

The old Carey Lumber Co. buildings on West Main St. are being dismantled, which will clear most of a city block in an excellent downtown location.

A clearing project is complete on US77-SH 36C which anticipates new construction on the north side of the highway, a span of roadway which is scheduled to be repaved and curbed from the US 77 underpass toward the Little River Bridge.

Other old buildings have been tagged for destruction sometime in the future in what used to be Cameron's warehouse district east of what has become New Court-house Square and Mall.

The clearing project at O. J. Thomas School has been completed and new paving for tennis courts, basketball courts, and community building are well underway.

An additional site has been cleared at Cameron Park, on East Sixth St., which enhanced the Tennis Center on the north side.

In other words, the ring of modernization moving outward from the new downtown of 1974 is reaching the present city limits in almost every direction. New construction or beautification follows almost in every section.

New housing is steadily filling sub-divisions sites in the west, north, and northeast residential sections: several houses under construction all the time. And this factor for new housing is critical in all the growth that Cameron clears now for the undertaking.

What a difference a modern sense of direction makes.

"The controversy is so complex that no resolution seems near."

Oceans: Our Continuing Frontier

Oceans' Mineral Resources

By Don E. Kash

Editor's Note: This is the eighth of 16 articles in the series "Oceans: Our Continuing Frontier." In this first of three articles on marine resources, Don E. Kash considers the mineral wealth of the oceans and the economic, technological, and political problems involved in exploiting these resources. The author is Professor of Political Science and Director of the Science and Public Policy Program at the University of Oklahoma. These articles, which explore the whole range of human involvement with the sea, were written for Courses by Newspaper, a program developed by University Extension, University of California, San Diego, and funded by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Copyright 1976 by the Regents of the University of California.

All but hidden by the clamor over the energy crisis is what some believe to be an approaching minerals crisis.

Both crises share two interrelated problems--the growing shortage of domestic resources and thus our increasing reliance on potentially unfriendly nations for minerals as well as energy supplies. Aluminum, copper, manganese, tin, nickel, cobalt--all crucial to the modern technology that supports our economy and lifestyle--must be imported in ever increasing amounts to meet needs not covered by domestic production.

But will these dwindling supplies automatically mean that the U. S. and other developed countries must pay any political or economic price asked by the exporting countries in the future? A vocal and growing group answers, "No, not if we are willing to expend the effort and money to tap resources beneath the ocean."

With more than 70 percent of the earth's surface covered by the sea, the ocean floor is thought to be a bountiful source of energy and mineral resources. Current estimates are that the ocean floor contains more than 30 percent of the world's remaining oil and gas and 50 percent of its hard minerals. Also, many of the ocean's resources should be high grade, as compared to the increasingly lower grade of terrestrial resources.

Recent technological advances have made deep-water resources available for the first time. With offshore oil and gas technology leading the way, a new marine resources industry is now opening all the world's oceans to development.

Undersea energy and mineral resources differ greatly in physical character, location, state of industrial development, and associated political issues.

Oil and gas technologies are well developed; operations take place near coastlines and involve primarily domestic issues. Hard mineral technologies are not commercial; mining will initially take place in deep water and will involve international issues. For these reasons, the two major resource categories are discussed separately.

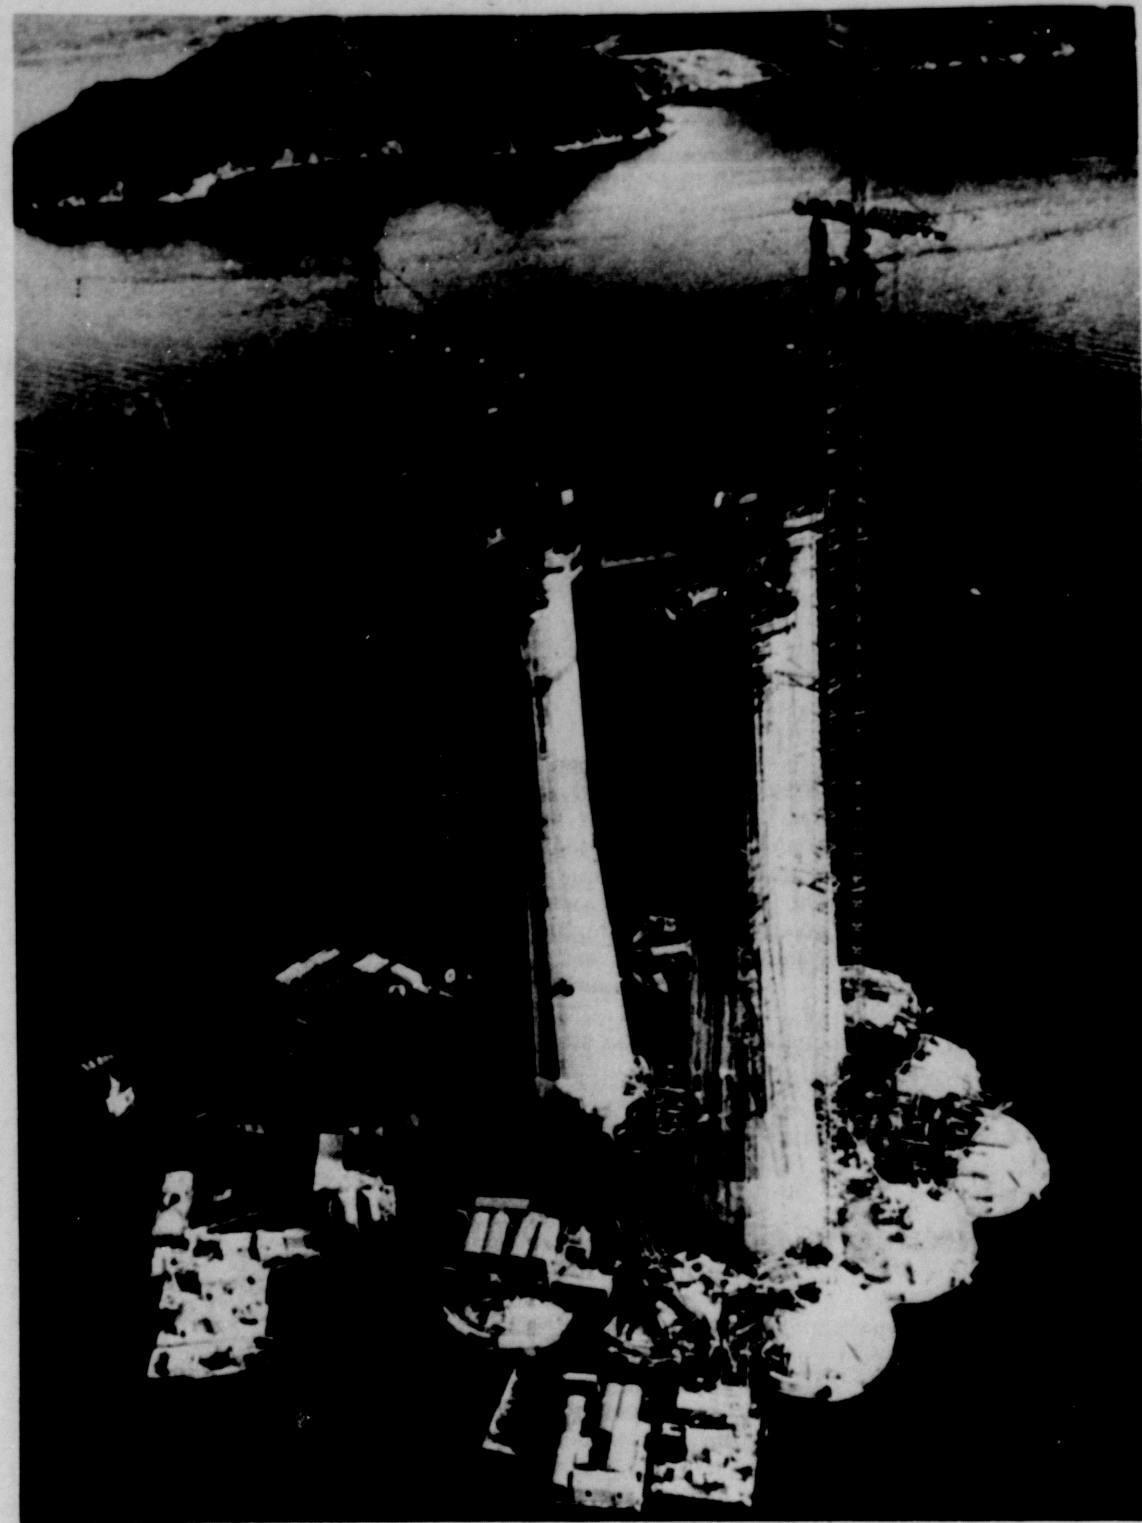

OFFSHORE OIL

Large-scale development of undersea petroleum resources began off the coast of Louisiana in 1947. The gradually sloping ocean floor in that area allowed industry to develop exploration and production technology step by step into greater water depths. The experience gained off Louisiana contributed directly to exploration and production technologies used in such diverse areas as the North Sea and offshore Indonesia.

Present technologies should be adequate to recover most of the estimated 55 to 70 percent of undersea petroleum resources located in water depths of 650 feet or less.

In 1975, offshore sources accounted for nearly 20 percent of the daily world petroleum production, or approximately 10 million barrels. The U. S. portion of that was 1.2 million barrels. With constantly decreasing terrestrial supplies, the offshore production percentages appear certain to increase in the near future.

The major constraints on offshore petroleum development in the U. S. have been political and social, particularly in areas such as the Atlantic and Alaskan coasts with no history of petroleum production. In these areas, political and environmental conflicts are heightened by uncertainty whether petroleum deposits actually exist.

NORTH SEA GIANT - Concrete supporting shafts, or pylons, of "Beryl A," the world's first concrete oil drilling and production platform, rise

Generally, the individual states own all undersea resources within three miles of their shores. Beyond that point, the federal government is the owner. Most of the nation's offshore petroleum is in federally owned areas. As a result, states contend that they suffer the major disadvantages of offshore development while the federal government enjoys the benefits. The states want a portion of the revenues, a role in managing the development, and sufficient information and lead time to plan for development.

The uncertainty over the existence of petroleum in offshore areas can only be resolved by exploratory drilling. To gain the rights to drill on federal lands, companies must bid on lease tracts, in effect paying thousands of dollars for a hunting license. In one case, Exxon paid $632 million for six tracts, totaling approximately 31,000 acres, on which they found no commercially producible oil. In other cases, low bids have won leases on tracts that became major producers.

As a result of these leasing arrangements, some portions of industry believe that they are forced to take unreasonable economic risks for the public good. Conversely, some industry critics contend that the practices allow private companies to exploit publicly-owned resources for unjustified company profits. Added to the state-federal conflicts, these disputes further confuse orderly development of offshore energy resources.

MINING OF THE DEEP SEA

The location of undersea ores and the technology for recovering them differ greatly from those for offshore oil and gas. At present, there is no large-scale marine mining.

Initial mining activities will likely attempt to recover large deposits of ferromanganese nodules under 12,000 to 18,000 feet of water in the mid-Pacific. These nodules have a sufficiently high content of manganese, nickel, copper, and cobalt to persuade experts that they can be commercially recovered from these great depths.

Two mining methods are proposed. One uses a bucket line dredge, which basically consists of a revolving loop of steel cable from the ship to the sea floor. Buckets attached to the cable collect the nodules and carry them to the surface. The other mining method pumps water with the nodules suspended in it through a pipe from the sea floor to a surface ship, something like a giant vacuum cleaner. One American company, Deepsea Ventures, plans to begin commercial operations with a mining system of this type in late 1976.

As will be discussed in a later article by William T. Burke, undersea mining has threatened existing international law and created a new arena of political conflict. Only advanced countries have the technological know-how and capital necessary to mine deep-water mineral resources. A single mining system may require an investment of $750 million.

Many of the less developed countries argue that such resources are the common heritage of mankind and thus the profits from the minerals should be used to pay for their economic development. Conversely, major mineral producers, such as Zaire and Chile, oppose essentially all marine mining as a threat to their economies. The controversy is so complex that no resolution seems near. However, some of the developed countries appear inclined to claim that these are free minerals owned by whoever recovers them first.

The history of petroleum and hard minerals development on land has always involved high risk and great controversy. As such activities move into the marine environment, those characteristics are likely to be magnified, not reduced.

A Memorable Kiss Helps Keep Computer Honest

If you see a man kissing a computer, it means which of the following: (a) he's bonkers, (b) you're bombed, (c) he's happy, or (d) it's his job?

The last is correct. In the escalating war of wits between crooks, spies, and security men, a Japanese company has produced a computer that registers lip prints.

It won't work until the perpetrator presses his or her lips against it, and then only if the kiss stirs something in the computer's memory bank.

Most computers are more easily turned on, and that can cost money, the National Geographic Society points out.

Theft and Espionage

Since computers only follow orders, crook programmers can lead them astray. The electronic marvels have aided and abetted theft and embezzlement, fraud and industrial espionage.

Authorities believe computer crime ranges as high as $300 million a year. But that's just an estimate since some computerized cleaners undoubtedly goes undetected.

Criminals have found there are better ways to rob a bank, for example, than with guns. One man retained to computerize a bank's checking accounts programmed the computer to ignore overdrafts on his own account.

He spent regularly and deposited rarely, while the bank made good on his checks. Similarly, a man engaged to adjust a computer for one of the nation's largest credit card companies adjusted it to enter no charges against his card number. He then went on an extended travel and shopping spree.

Both thieves were nibbled, not through good detective work, but because the computers later broke down and their accounts were processed by sharp-eyed human bookkeepers.

Pennies Add Up

Another breakdown undid the programmer for a mutual funds company. He instructed the computer to take all fractions of cents that appeared when it posted lives.

More Time Allowed On GI Bill

Veterans enrolled in GI Bill training are eligible for up to an additional nine months training, Jack Coker, director of the War Veterans Administration regional office, said today.

The Veterans Education and Employment Assistance Act of 1976, signed into law by President Ford Oct. 15, increased the training entitlement for thousands of veterans who have not reached their 10-year delimiting date, Coker said.

Effective Oct. 1, 1976, the law extended entitlement to 45 months for veterans, if they have served at least 18 months on continuous active duty after January 31, 1955.

Previously, basic entitlement was 36 months. An additional nine months was available only if the GI Bill student was pursuing an undergraduate college degree.

Unchanged is the 10-year delimiting date. Veterans retain eligibility for 10 years after release from active duty or until Dec. 31, 1989, whichever is earlier, Coker explained.

tors' shares each month and add them to his account. It cost him a little when stocks fell, but he more than made up for it when they rose.

New York City was the site of the largest computer fraud yet uncovered. An insurance firm fed information on hundreds of phony policies into its computer. The company then used the faked assets to obtain large bank loans.

In Los Angeles six men recently were indicted for allegedly taking fees of up to $1,500 from persons who were bad credit risks, then falsifying their computerized records so they could continue to get credit.

In another scheme, a man developed a system to make the Internal Revenue Service's computer send him refunds on dozens of fictitious tax returns. Instead, the computer triggered an alarm and he went to jail. In prison, he devised a way around the computer's guard. Released, he tried again--and was caught by a new computer.

Big City Stores First To Feature 'Natural Blend'

For a cotton producer, it is a frustrating scenario. He raises his crop and sells it. Then he goes to his local clothing store to buy one of the new mostly cotton, durable press shirts. But the local store doesn't have it.

"It's frustrating for the cotton producer; it's frustrating for us," says J. Nicholas Hahn, Cotton Incorporated vice-president for sales marketing.

"Although selling is the name of the game, we cannot dictate to apparel manufacturers where they must sell their products," explains Hahn, "not even 'Natural Blend' apparel that we persuaded them to make."

"Natural Blend" is a trademark of Cotton Incorporated for blended easy care fabrics of 60 percent cotton or more.

"Apparel manufacturers push their products where they think they can make the most money the fastest," Hahn says. "That is in the big city population centers. Only after manufacturers feel they have saturated the big markets will they begin hitting the smaller cities and towns."

Often it takes a year or longer before a manufacturer extends his new product pipeline down to Hometown, USA, Hahn says.

But there is something the cotton producers can do about it.

"Cotton producers can short circuit the marketing pipeline by encouraging their local merchants to take the initiative and place an order with the manufacturer without waiting for a salesman to come around," Hahn explains.

Advising Sessions Set At TJC

Academic advising conferences for spring semester classes at Temple Junior College are now being conducted, Charles Stout, director of Admissions, said.

Students planning to enroll for the spring semester should make an appointment for a conference with a counselor by calling 773-9961, ext. 41. This includes both returning and new students.

Registration numbers will be given to students in the order they report for academic advising and it is to the student's advantage to schedule his conference early, Stout said.

Copies of the spring semester class schedule are now available at the Admissions Office. Registration for spring semester day school will be Jan. 10 and 11.

Preregistration is now under way for Evening Division Classes. Students planning to enroll in the Evening Division also should make an appointment for an advising conference. Payments Increase For Disabled Vet

Some 2.2 million veterans receiving compensation for service-connected disabilities from the Veterans Administration will receive an 8 percent increase in their monthly payments as a result of legislation signed into law September 30, by President Ford, according to Jack Coker, VA regional director.

The 8 percent increase in monthly rates also was extended to nearly 320,000 surviving spouses and children receiving dependency and indemnity compensation from the VA. These payments go to eligible survivors of veterans who died on active duty or from service-connected causes. Rates range from $260 to $644, based on the veteran's military grade at the time of his death.

Aetna Life Gives Aid To Colleges

Nineteen Texas colleges and universities have received $21,322.50 in 1976 under the Aetna Life & Casualty's aid to higher education program.

Aetna's share was $11,367.50, supplementing agent and employee gifts of $9,955 to the Texas institutions.

Texas A&M University received $9,325, the state's largest combined company and employee contribution.

The Texas grants are part of $427,818 contributed to 580 schools in the United States and Canada under Aetna's program this year.

Since the inception of the program in 1961, more than $4 million has been contributed to higher education.

FB Records Growth In Membership

The Texas Farm Bureau has recorded one of its largest membership gains in its history, according to Carol Chaloupka of Dalhart, president.

Official tabulations just completed show that the state's largest farm organization now has 195,571 member families, an increase of 15,101 over last year. The TFB membership year runs from Nov. 1 to Oct. 31.

"This makes the 24th consecutive year for the Texas Farm Bureau to gain in membership," Chaloupka said. "Just as significant is the fact that this is the fourth year in a row for all 210 organized counties to show a gain."

The Dalhart grain and livestock producer said that 97 counties gained more than 75 members this year.

"This tremendous gain in membership strength indicates that farmers and ranchers are realizing more than ever the need for a strong organization to represent them," Chaloupka said.

The present Texas Farm Bureau dates back to 1934 when it was organized as the Texas Agricultural Association. The name was changed a few years later when it affiliated with the American Farm Bureau Federation. The original TFB was organized in Texas in 1920, but had ceased functioning by the early 1930s.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is the largest general farm organization in the world with more than 2 1/2 million member families in 2800 county Farm Bureaus in 49 states (all except Alaska).

QUARTERBACK Bobby Burton, #11, scampers for long yardage as he aids the Yoe offense in another winning effort.

Yoemen End Season; Cage Panthers, 27-0

Rain didn't dampen the spirits of the Cameron Yoemen as they tamed the Pflugerville Panthers 27-0 in their closing game of the 1976 season Friday night at Pflugerville.

The Yoemen opened the scoring late in the first stanza, capitalizing on a Panther fumble. Seven plays later the Yoemen hit pay dirt as David Rosemond plunged in from four yards out to put the Yoemen on the scoreboard. The PAT by Gary Lewis was straight and true, and as the final seconds of the first quarter became history the Yoemen were in the lead 7-0.

In the second quarter the Yoemen wasted no time getting on the scoreboard, marching 25 yards in 5 plays, a drive set up after a 48 yard punt return by David Rosemond. Rosemond was again called on to tote the pigskin in from 5 yards out. Lewis' PAT was good and with 11:56 left in the half, the Yoemen owned the commanding lead 14-0.

The Panthers took over from their own 19 yard line with what looked to be a successful scoring drive, but gained only one first down, as the Yoe fence held. The Yoemen held the Panthers to only 3 first downs in the first 24 minutes of play.

With 9:14 left in the half the Yoemen were not to be denied yet another score. The Yoemen took over, driving 68 yards in 9 plays. The drive ended with quarterback Bobby Burton sprinting 29 yards into the end zone for six, the extra point try failed and the Yoemen led 20-0. The Panthers again took over but were unable to sustain the drive needed to score as time ended in the half and the Yoemen held a comfortable halftime lead, 20-0.

Rains cancelled the halftime performance and spectators scrambled for cover. Due to heavy rains and occasional sleet the remaining two quarters were shortened to 8 minutes each.

The second half proved to be a defensive battle with the ball changing hands several times. The Panthers were never able to put it all together, although their optimism was more evident in the final 16 minutes of the game.

The Panthers' final attempt to score and ruin a Yoemen shutout was spoiled by Donald Komar, who intercepted a Jimmy Havins pass in the end zone and the Yoemen took over on their 20.

With 5 minutes left in the game, the Yoemen began their final scoring drive. Marching 80 yards in 8 plays the Yoemen again lit the scoreboard as Donald Komar was called on to carry the ball 42 yards into the end zone for the score. The PAT was good, and with 33 seconds left in the game, the Yoemen had closed their season with a fine winning effort 27-0.

Defensive standouts for the Yoemen were Clay Kruse, Joe Schmidt, and Donald Komar.

Offensive standouts for the Yoemen were John Schmidt, Bobby Burton, and David Rosemond.

Tigers Slip By Cougars

The Rosebud-Lott Cougars, after an unimpressive season, almost defeated the number 10 ranked Rockdale Tigers, dropping it in the final minutes 24-20.

With 58 seconds left in the game Rockdale fullback Robert Luetge charged over from three yards out for the winning score.

The Tigers scored first on a two yard run by halfback Don Wesley, but the point after attempt failed, leaving Rockdale with a narrow margin.

Early in the second quarter the Cougars struck back, scoring on a one-yard run by QB C. E. Wolf. The PAT failed and the score was tied at six each.

Fullback Luetge was again called on to do the honors for the Tigers, with a two-yard scamper into the end zone.

Before the Tiger defense had a chance to regroup, the Cougars had scored again on a 15-yard pass from QB C. E. Wolf to split end Preston Tindle. David Perez added the extra point and the Cougars left the field holding a slim half time lead, 13-12.

Luetge was the name as he again lit the scoreboard for the Tigers in the third starza with a 14-yard run to pay dirt.

Rosebud-Lott was not to be denied scoring again late in the third period on a pass from Wolf to halfback Larry Johnson. Wolf added the extra point and the Cougars led by a slim margin.

The fourth quarter was a defensive standoff and with less than a minute to play Luetge tallied the winning score for the Tigers. The game ended with Rockdale in the lead, 24-20.

Reuters International News Briefs

BUDAPEST

Hungary's communist leader Janos Kadar hopes to visit West Germany soon, a journey stamped with symbolism 20 years after the Budapest uprising was crushed by Soviet tanks. Kadar enjoys genuine popularity in Hungary, but it has taken him two decades to gain the international respectability needed to make such a visit possible.

PARIS

On top of a rising crime rate and the ever-present threat of riots, French Interior Minister Michel Poniatowski has a new headache--demonstrations by police. Militant Paris policemen recently downed guns for a day of protest and more than 10,000 angry "flics" (cops) turned up for a mass meeting to discuss their grievances.

VIENTIANE, LAOS

Russians now outnumber Americans and French settlers in the bars of this pleasant little capital of the People's Democratic Republic of Laos, which celebrates its first birthday next month. There is still plenty of evidence in many major buildings and in the prevalent international language of the former French colonial era.

MANILA

The Philippines has begun to adopt a harder line towards the arrival of refugees from Vietnam, according to both local and international authorities here. Aside from having limited funds for resettlement, the government wants to avoid diplomatic entanglements. "As a matter of principle we are not accepting refugees and neither do we encourage Vietnamese refugees to come here," one government official said.

VIENNA

Sixty years ago, Austria's Emperor Franz Joseph kept a standing army of 950,000 men. Now, neutral Austria has 38,000 men under arms. In a country where soldiers are rarely seen outside their barracks, politicians are reluctant to spend money on man-power and weapons they hope will never be needed. Austria's defense budget is $320 million.

ATHENS

Priceless statues in the Acropolis are to be removed and replaced by plaster replicas to halt corrosion eating away the ancient marble. Most famous of the statues to be taken away and treated by scientists are the six maidens, known as Caryatids, which have stood at the south portico of the Erechtheion for 2,500 years.

BUENOS AIRES

A new Spanish-language edition of the Bible, containing pointed references to the contrasts of riches and poverty in Latin America, has highlighted growing tensions between radicals, moderates, and traditionalists in Argentina's Roman Catholic Church. Although the Bible has been available since 1972, it has in recent weeks become a focal point for attacks by traditional churchmen against what they see as Marxist infiltration in religious life.

BALBOA, PANAMA CANAL ZONE

The Panama Canal is steadily losing money--more than 30 million dollars in the last three years--and President Ford has been asked to approve increases up to 20 percent in tolls. The request comes from the board of directors of the U. S. Government's Panama Canal Co. They have asked for a decision by Nov. 16, which by that time the presidential election is over.

LONDON

A few years back Britain was thankful that oil exporting countries were ready to deposit huge sums of their new-found wealth in sterling assets in London. Now the picture has changed. Foreigners have been running down their sterling balances and Prime Minister James Callaghan regards the reserve status of the pound as an albatross around his Labour Government's neck.

MURMANSK

At a time when countries are planning to establish 200-mile limits that will squeeze out foreign fishing trawlers, the Soviet Union is facing difficulties over its depleting deep sea fishing stocks. Another threat is the search for oil. The head of the Murmansk Oceanographic Research Institute told visiting journalists he was concerned over Norwegian plans to drill for oil off the coast of northern Norway, a main spawning site for Arctic cod.

PARIS

France's coastline--disfigured by developers, saturated with summer vacationers, and despoiled by factories--faces rapid ruin, ecologists say. So the French government, out to stop this pell-mell destruction of the country's natural heritage, has set up a national trust. Its chief aim is to buy up chunks of coastline and put them permanently under state protection.

TEGUCIGALPA, HONDURAS

Poverty-stricken Honduras is staking its economic future on an ambitious scheme that could also save one of Latin America's richest forests from extinction. Plans are now well advanced for building a $415 million wood and paper industry in the remote pine-clad hills of Olancho Province in the northeast region of this Central American republic.

Applications Open For Jamboree

According to Jamboree chairman Glenn Craig of the Heart O'Texas Council, applications for the 1977 National Scout Jamboree are available at the council office for those Scouts who wish to attend.

The jamboree, to be held August 3-9, 1977 at Moraine State Park near Butler, Pa., just 70 miles north of Pittsburgh, will be attended by slightly more than 31,000 boys from across the country.

Craig said, "We have set our qualifications rather high so that boys with outstanding records and leadership potential will attend." Afterwards those who attended will share their experience with various troops in the Heart O'Texas Council.

Thousands of Scouts will be involved in a week of working, learning, and living with Scouts from all 50 states and over 300 brother Scouts from most of the 109 member nations of the world Scouting movement.

Craig said, "This is going to be the 'summit conference' of Scouting, one where all of the Scoutcraft skills and techniques will be blended with other program events to be shared with the various troops we work with."

Benefit Rate Increases For Veterans

A 7 percent increase in monthly benefit rates for Veterans Administration pensioners, plus increases in the annual income limits on which the pensions are based, becomes effective January 1, 1977. The pension changes were approved by the President on September 30.

Affected are about a million veterans and 1.6 million veterans' survivors receiving VA pensions, Jack Coker, VA regional director pointed out.

The increases are estimated to cost $432 million in fiscal year 1977.

Income limitations were raised as follows: to $3,540 for veterans or surviving spouses without dependents and to $4,760 for those with dependents under the current program; to $3,100 and $4,460 for those under the prior pension law; and for parents under the dependency and indemnity compensation program, the limits were raised to $3,540 for a single parent and $4,760 for parents living together or with a spouse.

Operas To Be Held At Baylor

The Baylor University Opera Theater, under the direction of Dr. Daniel Scott, will present two short operas, "La Serva Padrona" by Pergolesi and "Comedy on the Bridge" by Martinu, in two performances Nov. 22 and 23 at 8:15 p.m. in Romy Grove Hall on the Baylor campus.

Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students, and may be purchased at the Baylor School of Music offices or at the door. All seats will be general admission.

"La Serva Padrona" or "The Maid Mistress" premiered in Naples on Aug. 28, 1733. Its success was so great that it was presented throughout Europe within the year, and received 63 consecutive performances in Paris, where it generated the famous French school of the Opera Comique.

Prague Radio commissioned Bohuslav Martinu's satire "Comedy on the Bridge," and it was premiered on the air in 1937. It was first presented in stage in 1952, six years before the composer died.

The wryly satirical music sets the stage for the short piece which takes place on a bridge separating two warring armies in the early 19th century.
